

Write For A Reason (What is the driving reason for writing a policy?)

Questions to consider:

- Define a metric to measure performance
- Provide details regarding requirements
- Establish/outline consistent procedures
- Resolve legal disputes
- Fill a gap between existing policies
- Response to local/system/community situation

Write For The Users (not just the readers)

Questions to consider:

Where/how will this be used? What is the education/experience level of the users? What's In it For Me? So what? How soon can I stop reading this?

Write Content Right

Use Plain Language

Use Everyday Words

- Use easy to read words
- Free Your Verbs (from unnecessary extras)

Use Pronouns

- Speak directly to the user with verbs
 - You (user), We (organization), I (author)
 - "If you need a badge, you must fill out this form..."

Use Active Voice

- Shows responsibility/gives credit
- More direct sentences that get to the point
- Uses fewer words
- Form of "to be" + past participle = passive voice

Write for the Web: Usability

- Avoid the Word Wall
- Organize for novices, design for experts

- Use Headings (and Subheadings)
